With more than 25 years of experience, Reginald Scotland is an experienced program, project and change manager, business analyst, communications analyst, facilitator, mentor, and coach. Reg is an engaging and sociable instructor. He leads adult learners in project management, and is the co-developer and presenter of a popular webinar series on project management. He has designed and delivered courses on leadership and communications as well as skydiving and numerous military subjects.

As an experienced mentor and coach, Reg enjoys helping people to achieve new levels of personal and professional competence. His philosophy is that successful people are always learning, and that both the learner and facilitator roles often bring new insights and understandings to those involved.

Reg holds a BAA in Journalism from Ryerson University, a Project Management Professional (PMP) designation from the Project Management

Institute (PMI), a Certified Management Consultant (CMC) designations for the Institute of Certified Management Consultants of Ontario, and is certified in Change Management methodology (Prosci ADKAR®). He serves on the Boards of the Royal Canadian Military Institute, St. John Ambulance of York Region, and on the Toronto Executive of the Order of St. George.

He is a Lieutenant-Colonel in the Canadian Army Reserves, with experience in leadership, emergency management, logistics, training, planning, and financial administration and management.

In his spare time, Reg enjoys spending time with family and friends, skydiving, flying, singing and song writing, and contemplation.
